Jason Hays Packaging Consultant

Jason is more than just your average sales rep, he is a teacher, friend and innovator. In today's competitive market, Jason has gone above and beyond to incorporate the latest technological applications and tools into Stronghaven's business capabilities. The 3-D rendering programs he has developed and shared with all levels of our company have increased the customer service, productivity, and value of all our packaging consultants and put Stronghaven in a class of its own.

Aimee Snowden, Sales Consultant

In 2008, Aimee, a graduate of UNF, joined K&G under a new program established by Stronghaven to hire young college graduates with limited or no experience in business. The program was designed to teach young people the box business from the inside out. Aimee entered the program with a great deal of enthusiasm and the desire to become a professional sales consultant. With a hunger to learn and a great deal of energy, she completed the program and began to market Stronghaven's suite of products. In four years, she has become one of K&G's top sales professionals.
